Summer 2022 IMSD Internship
Program Details

The MARC/IMSD Internship is conducted as part of the University’s comprehensive summer Undergraduate research program.

Interns receive a stipend of $4000, plus a meal plan, and university housing, or a stipend of $1000 if the student is already in a lease in Columbia.

It is a minimum of nine weeks (May 31-July 30), with a mandatory orientation and “team challenge” on June 1.

Students are expected to work a regular 40-hour work week and are not permitted to enroll in formal coursework. Permission to take a class (other than research credit, which is permitted) may be granted in rare circumstances, but permission must be obtained prior to accepting the internship.

Interns will be required to attend occasional evening seminars and participate in brown-bag lunches and other sessions to discuss their research projects.

The summer program culminates in a recognition ceremony and a formal poster session on Thursday, July 28\textsuperscript{th}. All interns will present their research project results.

Application review begins on March 14\textsuperscript{th}. All applicants will be notified of selection or non-selection by Mid-April.
